Brownholtz & Associates, Competitive Energy
Executive Search Firm, Launches New Website

SACRAMENTO: Brownholtz & Associates, a boutique, alternative-energy search firm focused on the competitive utility markets, has announced the launch of its new website brownholtz.com.

“We are experiencing a hyper-competitive moment in the energy industry,” says Scott Brownholtz, president of Brownholtz & Associates. “Without question, this is a candidate-driven market. The jobs are plentiful, but there are not enough qualified candidates to fill them. Our new website informs and guides visitors throughout the hiring process which enables us to increase the quality of service.

Brownholtz & Associates cultivates relationships with investors, key executives and stakeholders within targeted utility disciplines; then recruits high-performance, specialized talent to fill those needs at all levels of the organizational chart.

Brownholtz.com provides quick and intuitive access to information. For clients, there are the specifics for a professional and successful recruiting process; for candidates, the website contains tips from resume preparation to interview preparation and counteroffers.

“We facilitate the search process through an understanding of client culture and candidate competencies,” Brownholtz added. “This new website is an entrée into a successful experience for both clients and candidates. Its simplified site navigation makes it quick and easy for visitors to find the valuable recruiting information they are looking for, and engage Brownholtz & Associates for further exploration.”

For more than 20 years, Brownholtz & Associates has been committed to the competitive utility markets, specializing in alternative energy, retail energy, demand-side management, and water resources.
